

MOTHER

Nobody dies,
and Mother least of all.
Her loving guise,
the sound of her footfall,
brighten the dark hall.
Some feature of her face
repeats in every year.
Her voice, her gentle grace,
in some dear child appear,
Her vision stills our fear.
She cannot pass
while our remembering
crowns the green grass
with happy flowers of Spring.
Recalling everything;
her kindness most of all,
that passed nobody by.
Whatever may befall,
whatever changing sky,
Mother will not die.
