

In Memory of a Plumber

He wore his tool belt like a badge of pride,
Fixing leaks, with skill, and strength so wide.

Pipes and valves in his steady hands,
He built our home with work and plans.

Through every drip and every drain,
He taught us all how to sustain.

A father's love, so strong and true,
In every task, he saw us through.

He turned wrenches and tightened screws,
Never once seeking any dues.

His greatest work, his masterpiece,
Was the love he gave, his lasting peace.

With calloused hands and a gentle heart,
He played his every father's part.

Taking care of his little girl,
He made her life a precious pearl.

Now tools are silent, work complete,
In Heaven's light, we hope he'll meet,
The peace he earned through toil and care,
Our love for him, beyond compare.
