Lk's Lessons

As my wings spread readily To take me on to heaven I pause to take a moment To remind you of my lessons.

For my children who I've taught To do the right thing through and through Remember and don't forget To Do as I say not as I do

But if you want to try your luck And decide to be a risk taker Be wise in your decisions Cause you can't play a player, player

Pay attention to those movies Their purpose is not always lucid They think the people of this country Are so smart they're stupid stupid

Always stand your ground Don't let anyone tell you where you've been If you didn't tap me on my shoulder I guess I wasn't there then

Listen to your elders They've been where you're trying to be Never forget that I told you The apple doesn't fall far from the tree

A lot of you already know Any pain that came i was numbing But now that I'm with my Father I no longer need a lil something something

Now It's time for me to move on I will be watching you from above My heart smiles at all these lessons And With them I leave my love
